Driven by a constantly curious mind, Emma chose glass as her medium when studying Contemporary Decorative Crafts at Lincoln University. Several years after graduating, a garden studio was built at her home in Balderton, Nottinghamshire, from which she also offers workshops to the public.

Since 2018 Emma has been a full-time glass artist, participating in group exhibitions, trade shows and artisan markets. She is an active member of the Contemporary Glass Society and is taking part in the first ever Craftworks this May in London, presented by Jay Blades as part of London Craft Week”.
